Apricorns are ball-like fruit found around the Isle of Armor from shaking trees. Once you get a bunch of Apricorns, you'll want to take them to the Cram-o-matic at the dojo. Description Games Description Quest Hard and small ingredients. Erika and Pryce, due to their statuses as the leaders of their respective region's Gym Leaders, were automatically selected to battle each other. Additionally, in Pokémon HeartGold and SoulSilver, they can be blended using an Apriblender to make drinks which improve a Pokémon's performance for Pokéathlon competitions. The Apricorns regrow quickly, once the player has left the vicinity. The event programme is updated regularly. In the modern day, only specialists (such as Kurt) can make Poké Balls. In these games, Apricorns are placed in the Apricorn Box (a Key Item that functions like a pocket) instead of the Bag's Items pocket. If the game was in sleep mode (the Nintendo DS was closed) over midnight, this will happen as soon as the game is taken out of sleep mode. In Pokémon Legends: Arceus, Brown Apricorn can be found growing on trees throughout the Hisui region. Before Poké Balls became standardized, everyone used Poké Balls made this way. You can see what Apricorn colors you'll need to get the respective rare ball below. Variant Poké Balls can be constructed by using additional or alternative materials, but all Poké Balls use a Brown Apricorn. You'll also have a 0.1% chance to get a Safari Ball or a Sport Ball. Bonguri may come from the Japanese chestnut, known as ぼんぐり (nihonguri), or from the acorn, どんぐり (donguri). In The Isle of Armor, Apricorns are obtained by shaking Berry Trees across the island or by exchanging Watts. In the Hisui region (the Sinnoh region of the past), people craft Poké Balls using Brown Apricorns and Tumblestones. In Generation IV, if an Apricorn tree is left bare and on-screen without turning the game off over midnight, the plant will sparkle (in the same way Berry plants do when advancing a stage) and an Apricorn will appear on it. Certain biomes on the island produce specific Apricorns. We recommend updating your browser to its most recent version at your earliest convenience. In the Generation II games, only one of each Apricorn is available per day, from the Apricorn trees on Routes 37 and 42 and in Azalea Town. If you're looking for rare Poké Balls specifically, you'll need a lot of Apricorns. In Yikes, It's Yammi!, an Apricorn lottery was used to randomly decide which pairs of Gym Leaders from Kanto and Johto would face each other in an interregional exhibition tournament at Indigo Plateau. Because of the length of the word "Apricorn", only the Red Apricorn is able to have its full color name in English prior to Generation VI, with the other six having abbreviated versions because item names are limited to 12 characters (including spaces). The more Apricorns of a specific color you put into the machine, the higher chance you'll have to get the rare ball counterpart. If you put in four Apricorns of one color, you'll have a 1% chance to get the rare ball for that respective color. You can do this using Apricorns. Acquisition Apricorn is a possible ingredient that can be obtained by completing expeditions. Because the outer skin of Apricorns are so tough, they cannot be eaten by Pokémon unprocessed. Starting in Generation VI, item names can be longer, and the Apricorns are all spelled out in full in English (although they were not made available until Generation VIII). Gallery Name origin The word Apricorn may be a combination of "apricot" and "acorn". They grow in the Johto region, Kanto region, HGSS Hisui region, and Galar's Isle of Armor. In Pokémon Sword and Shield, using the Expansion Pass the player can go to the Isle of Armor. This process was developed sometime between 400 and 700 years before the present day (between the burning of Brass Tower and the first Orange League competitions). If you were looking for the item found in Legends: Arceus, see Apricorn (item). Gold, unaware of Apricorns' true purpose, attempted and failed to eat one from a tree. In these games, the Bag sprites are only used in the point-exchange menu at the Pokéathlon Dome. You'll have to supply the Cram-o-matic with four items in order to get one randomly. In Pokémon Gold and Silver he can only craft one Poké Ball at a time, whereas in subsequent games he can craft any number of the same Poké Ball at once. In Pokémon HeartGold and SoulSilver only, Apricorns cannot be held, in order to prevent them being traded to Pokémon Diamond, Pearl, and Platinum (where they do not exist). These do not influence editorial content, though Vox Media may earn commissions for products purchased via affiliate links. In An Egg Scramble!, Yellow Apricorns were one of the things Khoury was selling at the Johto Festival. In spin-off games Pokémon Quest An Apricorn in Pokémon Quest An Apricorn is an ingredient that can be used in cooking to attract wild Pokémon in Pokémon Quest. The seven Apricorns of the modern day Apricorns (Japanese: ぼんぐりの Bonguri Fruit) are fruits that can be used to construct Poké Balls. Green Apricorns are by far the most common, appearing in eight places; while White and Red Apricorns are the least common, each only appearing in three places. In the wild, Pokémon wait for the outer skin to rot and eat the insides, leaving Spoiled Apricorns. In the anime, possibly as a coloring error, Black Apricorns were portrayed as being brown-colored. Red Apricorns: Level Ball Yellow Apricorns: Moon Ball Green Apricorns: Friend Ball Blue Apricorns: Lure Ball Pink Apricorns: Love Ball Black Apricorns: Heavy Ball White Apricorns: Fast Ball Prices taken at time of publishing. In all generations in Japanese, abbreviation is used only for the Green Apricorn, which uses みどり midori, green. In Pokémon HeartGold and SoulSilver, Apricorns are much more widely available. After Kurt had given Ash, Misty, and Brock a Fast Ball each, made from White Apricorns growing next to his house, he sent them to collect other Apricorns with Maizie. For more information, see our ethics policy. These Apricorns can be retrieved by having a Pokémon bump the tree they grow in. It can be fed four Apricorns to create a random Poké Ball, which is determined by the combination of Apricorns put in. Acquisition The group of Apricorn trees on Route 37 in Generation II The group of Apricorn trees on Route 37 in Generation IV The primary method of obtaining Apricorns is from Apricorn trees. In Pokémon Gold, Silver, Crystal, HeartGold, and SoulSilver, the player can give Apricorns to Kurt in Azalea Town, who will have turned them into Poké Balls by the next day. In the anime Apricorns made their only major anime appearance in Going Apricorn!. As a result, parts of the site may not function properly for you. After several failed attempts at picking Apricorns, the group managed to pick two Blue Apricorns and a Black Apricorn, which Kurt used to make a pair of Lure Balls and a Heavy Ball for them, which they obtained shortly before leaving Azalea Town in the next episode. HeartGold & SoulSilver chapter In Out-Of-Order Oddish, Gold was seen running around the Pokéathlon Dome to make Apricorns out of Apricorns with his Apriblender. "If you're positive that you'll be spending a majority of your time playing the Switch at home, connected to a television, then you should seriously consider investing in the Switch's Pro Controller." —Polygon's Nintendo Switch review Vox Media has affiliate partnerships. Note that there is a very high chance that you'll end up with Poké Balls, Great Balls, Quick Balls, and other Poké Balls you can get at the store. However, a Pokémon caught in an Apricorn Poké Ball can be traded to Pokémon Diamond, Pearl or Platinum, although the Pokémon's Poké Ball will appear as a standard Poké Ball in those games. Trivia Grn Apricorn's tree on Route 30 respawning at midnight In Pokémon HeartGold and SoulSilver, Apricorns have different sprites for the Apricorn Case and the Bag. Inside the dojo on the Isle of Armor, in Mustard's room, the player can find the Cram-o-matic, a robot resembling a Cramorant, made by Mustard's son Hyde. Gallery In the manga An Apricorn in Pokémon Adventures Pokémon Adventures Gold, Silver & Crystal chapter Apricorns were first seen in Teddiursa's Picnic, where Kurt's ability to turn them into special Poké Balls was demonstrated. List of Apricorns In the core series games Mechanics Apricorns can be turned into Apricorn Poké Balls. This unlocks shortly after you first arrive at the dojo and it's sitting in the room to the right. These trees yield one Apricorn per day. Locations that contained Berry trees in Generation II now contain Apricorn trees instead, sometimes with the number of trees also being increased. Image: Nintendo/Gamefreak, The Pokémon Company via Polygon Pokémon Sword and Shield's Isle of Armor expansion finally allows players to get more rare Poké Balls. Apricorns can be hollowed out and fitted with special devices to function as Poké Balls. In Pokémon Legends: Arceus, with the game taking place in the past, all Poké Balls are crafted from Brown Apricorns (simply referred to as Apricorns in the game). Trainers can blend Apricorns in an Apriblender to make Aprijuce for their Pokémon to drink. The color of the Apricorns corresponds to their flavor and associated performance stat, with the White and Black Apricorns affecting all stats.
